Do not labour Pru,
The world can open up for you
Without the need for pain or grief,
The falseness of prepared belief,

The blatant lies of flesh and blood,

False illusions of a god,
Without the wild hypocrisies
Of striving endlessly to please,

Beliefs in purpose, order, or
The mightiness of human law,
Or justice, in a national sect,
In human nature, self respect,

Approval gained in social eyes,
Or all those many other lies
About the need for fame or wealth:
The world is yours, just be yourself.
