At rest the galleon lies
Beneath these starless skies;
But though it seems we`ve lost our way,
Come, look how far we`ve sailed today:
Don`t let the flagging sails delay
The things we`ve still to learn.

I know it`s hard to bear
The dues of deep despair,
When all around is muddy sea;
But while you`re stranded here with me,
Let`s have no talk of mutiny,
Or bluer waves astern.

For in a kinder tide,
Our noble ship will glide;
And coaxed along by coral sea,
We`ll sail again in harmony
To where we know we can be free,
Never to return.
