v1 Shall we walk the lanes again
 And dodge the April showers,
 Sit beside the hedgerow
 And pick the wild Spring flowers,
 Or lie down in the meadow,
 To while away the hours?

v2 Shall we tread the fields again
 Beneath the Summer skies,
 Sit beside the river
 And watch the brown trout rise,
 Or lie down in the long grass,
 A sparkle in our eyes?

v3 Shall we climb the hills again,
 And sit awhile to gaze,
 Pick out familiar places
 In the gentle Autumn haze,
 Or lie in celebration
 Of soft September days?

v4 Shall we draw the curtains now,
 Shut out the winter cold,
 And sit here, warm, together,
 Content in growing old,
 Or lie down with the courage
 Of having you to hold?
