v1 Count up the times, on our hands and our knees,
   We've crawled beneath the barbed perimeter wire,
   Then run for our lives across the chicken run yard,
   In zig-zags, to avoid the submachine fire,
   Laid down the charges, and primed up the fuse,
   Preparing to blow the reinforced door:
   And did you ever wonder
   Exactly what we did it all for?

v2 Count up the times, in the dank of the moat,
   We've waded through the slurry and the spoil,
   Then raced for our lives to the base of the tower,
   In cross-paths, to avoid the boiling oil,
   Tossed up the grapple, and hitched up the ropes,
   Preparing to scale the battlement wall:
   And did you ever wonder
   The reason for it all?
   Did you ever wonder
   Exactly why we did it at all?
